

ENFORCEMENT AND INVESTOR PROTECTION DEPARTMENT

SEC ADVISORY

It has come to the attention of the SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION (SEC) that the entity named THE PEGASUS INTERNATIONAL VENTURES INCORPORATION, operated by YOLANDA BANDIOLA GALECIA, DELFIN III BANDIOLA GALECIA, LLOYD LOUIE BANDIOLA GALECIA, REYNANTE CASIA LASCONA, and MIRALYN ABRIO YASOL, has been enticing the public to invest their money in its scheme with the promise of high monetary rewards or profits.

The entity reportedly maintains physical offices and conducts operations online through the webpage www.thepegausintl.com and other digital platforms, enticing the public to part with their funds through what appears to be a binary-like marketing scheme or recruitment-driven model which structure is commonly associated with illegal or unauthorized investment scheme that are inherently unsustainable and detrimental to the public.

The SEC reiterates its advice to the public to exercise extreme caution when dealing with entities that offer or promise earnings that appear too good to be true.

The Commission emphasizes that the mere registration of a corporations does not grant it the authority to solicit investments from the public. Under Republic Act No. 8799, otherwise known as the Securities Regulation Code (SRC), entities intending to engage in the business of buying or selling securities, including investment contracts, must first secure a Secondary License from the SEC.

Any entity found soliciting investments without such license, along with all individuals involved in its promotion, shall be subject to corresponding administrative, civil, and criminal penalties under the law.

Per SEC records, THE PEGASUS INTERNATIONAL VENTURES INCORPORATION has no Secondary License or authority to solicit investments from the public.
